

What does Acupuncture Treat? in Small Animals

Skin Problems

Respiratory
Problems

Gastro-Intestinal
Problems

Musculoskeletal
Problems

Selected
Reproductive
Problems

Acupuncture is indicated for functional problems such as those that involve paralysis, noninfectious inflammation (such as allergies), and pain.

- Musculoskeletal problems, such as arthritis, intervertebral disk disease, or traumatic nerve injury
- Respiratory problems, such as feline asthma
- Skin problems such as lick granulomas and allergic dermatitis
- Gastrointestinal problems such as diarrhea
- Selected reproductive problems

What does Acupuncture Treat?

in Large Animals

Skin Problems

Respiratory
Problems

Gastro-Intestinal
Problems

Musculoskeletal
Problems

Selected
Reproductive
Problems

- Musculoskeletal problems such as lameness and muscle tension
- Neurological problems such as facial paralysis
- Skin problems such as allergic dermatitis
- Respiratory problems such as heaves and “bleeders”
- Gastrointestinal problems such as nonsurgical colic
- Selected reproductive problems

In addition, regular acupuncture treatment can treat minor sports injuries as they occur and help to keep muscles and tendons resistant to injury. If your animals are involved in any athletic endeavor, such as racing, jumping, or showing, acupuncture can help them keep in top physical condition.